

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

The public is awaiting with some interest the advent of a circus, the possible developments in the transportation problem, as it will begin to work itself out in this territory during Friday.

The bus lines are, in effect, under suspension of service tomorrow (Thursday) evening, the public utilities commission having refused to grant them permission to operate beyond that time. But when commuters and others who travel come down town Friday morning they will find the buses on the job and ready to cover their regular runs. This has been definitely announced. What will happen to the bus service during the day is a question, but it is a whole lot of law in the statute books and counsel for the bus lines are hopeful that they will find ways and means of keeping the buses running until such time as their appeal to the superior court from the decision of the public utilities commission is finally decided upon.

Just what means will be taken to oppose the operation of the buses and just what counter measures will be employed in the attempt to keep them operating no one here would or could tell on Thursday, but there seems to be an almost certain prospect that the day will bring forth some interesting developments.

A representative of the Connecticut company who was in Danielson looking over the situation on Tuesday said the company was not prepared at that time to give out a statement as to its plan of action and schedule of service here in this territory as to its plan of action and schedule of service here in this territory on any other Friday. Such a statement, in all probability, will be given out today, however. It is known rather definitely that the trolley road contemplates putting in a more frequent and adequate service, but just what this will be is not to be announced until today.

Tuesday afternoon, 1800 Angerling trout from the state hatcheries at Madison were received here on the 11th train and were immediately taken over by fish men who had filed applications for them, some of these applications having been on file for nearly two years.

Automobiles were used by those who received the cans of fish to take them to brooks in the surrounding country. Releases of practically all of the fish received here were made within an hour of the time they were taken from the train. Snake Meadow, Quodnick, Manchester, Fall and Blackwell's were some of the brooks into which the young trout went. All of these are in the hands of the fish men for trout fishing and the fish are to be sold at a price of 10 cents per pound.

Daniel Alvin Ladd, 36, of Williamstown, is being held by Capt. John Bulfinch of the Putnam police, claiming a stolen automobile which he claims he bought from a man at the Putnam railroad station, and which proved to be a stolen machine. Ladd is accused of the theft of the car, and last Friday Justice of the Peace George H. Allen, in Windham, found probable cause and bound him over to the criminal term of the superior court. In the justice court, Ladd was charged with stealing a Ford automobile, the property of John T. Johnson of Mansfield Hollow. The theft is alleged to have been committed on June 1, at the first week of June that Ladd told Putnam police officials he bought the machine here. It was brought out in the case that Johnson had left the car in his barn on the evening of June 1 and that the next morning it was gone.

The Williamstown police were notified, but they failed to locate the car. Ladd was taken into custody by the sheriff and pleaded not guilty. Ladd told the Putnam police Tuesday that he bought the car in good faith from the Putnam police station, and gave a description of the person who he said, sold it to him, and the local officials are investigating the story.

The case of Joseph Lafayette of Whitinsville, Mass., who was charged with a charge upon the complaint of Abbie LaPoint of Putnam, and to have been heard Saturday before Judge Thayer of the district court, Cambridge, Mass., has been continued to Oct. 28. Placing his 2 year old daughter on the seat of a Ford roadster, Max Levine, school street, Jackson, who had just got out of the car in order to make some repairs Tuesday morning, and then cranked the motor and started the engine. Because the automobile jerked once or twice and then started forward with no one but the baby as passenger. From the Levine roadster, where the car had been standing, to the pond, the car started, gaining momentum every foot of the way. Seeing that the automobile was headed straight for the water, Mr. Levine made a frantic effort to change its course and jumped into the body, at the same time trying to head the Ford into a nearby tree. He was not able to turn the car around and instead of hitting head on, he had just grazed the car struck the tree, a glancing blow and then overturned completely. The child was taken from the automobile the windshield, which had been shattered. A scratched finger had been little girl had to show for her perilous ride.

Mr. Levine was more seriously hurt. He was being stunned, he suffered a wound above the eye, and was treated by Dr. Edward P. Perry, who was called. The automobile lights were broken, the mudguards crushed and the top of the machine left in general disorder.

Adequate trolley service for Putnam, the possibility of obtaining for this city or immediate neighborhood a state park, and attempts for the city lines were among the topics discussed Monday night at the meeting of the Putnam Chamber of Commerce, held in the chamber rooms in the Union block, and attended by 30 members. The lively discussion by those present showed that there is considerable interest in the matters that the chamber is considering and in its activities generally.

In view of the fact that the bus lines have been ordered to discontinue their service after Thursday of this week, the trolley situation brought out much comment. So far as is known to the chamber, the Connecticut company, which operates the lines through the village (and some grown-ups) Saturday afternoon.
